ESG Metrics Definition

Our approach to ESG measurement seeks to combine qualitative and quantitative techniques. The tree rating shown in this report is a simple pictorial representation of the overall ESG rating of the fund's portfolio. A fund which has 1 tree has a poor ESG rating, whereas a fund with 5 trees has a high ESG rating. For more information on our ESG standards, approach and methodology please visit: Putting ESG to work | AXA IM Core (axa-im.com).

ESG relative rating is calculated as the difference between the ESG absolute rating of the portfolio and the ESG absolute rating of benchmark. If ESG Relative rating is positive (negative), this means that the portfolio has a higher (lower) ESG absolute rating than the benchmark.

CO2 relative intensity is calculated as the difference between the intensity of the fund (expressed in tCO2/M€ Revenues) and the one of benchmark.

If CO2 Relative intensity is green, it means that the intensity of portfolio is lower than that of the benchmark. If CO2 Relative intensity orange, it means that the intensity of the portfolio is higher than that the benchmark. If CO2 Relative intensity is yellow, it means that intensity of the portfolio is similar than that of the benchmark.

ESG indicators are for informational purposes only.

The portfolio does not present any regulatory or contractual objectives on ESG indicators.

Past performance is not a guide to current or future performance, and any performance or return data displayed does not take into account commissions and costs incurred when issuing or redeeming units. The value of investments, and the income from them, can fall as well as rise and investors may not get back the amount originally invested.

Exchange-rate fluctuations may also affect the value of their investment. Due to this and the initial charge that is usually made, an investment is not usually suitable as a short term holding. Commissions and costs have an adverse effect on the performance of the fund.

The Fund's characteristics do not protect the investors from the potential effect of inflation over time. The investments and/or any potential income generated during the period will not be adjusted by the rate of inflation over the same period. Thus, the return on the fund adjusted from the rate of inflation could be negative. Consequently, the inflation might undermine the performance and/or the value of your investment.

Glossary

Volatility (%): is an indicative measure of degree of variation of an asset's price changes over time.

Relative Risk/Tracking Error (%): measures, in standard deviation, the fluctuation of returns of a portfolio relative to the fluctuation of returns of a reference index. The tracking error can be viewed as an indicator of how actively a fund is managed. The lower the number the closer the fund's historic performance has followed its benchmark.

Sharpe ratio: is the measure of the risk-adjusted excess return over risk free rate of a financial portfolio and is used to compare the excess return of an investment to its risk. The higher the Sharpe ratio the better the return compared to the risk taken.

Information Ratio (IR): is a measurement of portfolio returns above the returns of a benchmark to the volatility of those excess returns.▪The IR is used to compare excess return over a benchmark to excess risk over a benchmark. E.g : A manager who outperforms a benchmark by 2% p.a. will have a higher IR than a manager with the same outperformance who has taken more risk.

AXA WF Global Inflation Bonds A EUR

Fund Manager's Comment

The end of the summer provided some support for inflation forecasts after a significant decline in July and August. The recovery in oil prices and attractive valuation levels provided relief for the inflation-linked bond market, which ended the month having slightly outperformed nominal bonds. In absolute terms, performance was positive as rates fell in accordance with central banks' monetary policy decisions.

The key event of the month was the first rate cut by the Federal Reserve, and particularly the fact that it was so significant at 50 basis points, bringing the fed funds rate down to 5% – 4.75%. The Fed's statement suggested that this would be part of a series of cuts, and that the dot plot indicated another 50 bp slash this year followed by 150 bp more thereafter. Economic projections suggested a more marked increase in unemployment, but growth and inflation forecasts changed little. Powell provided little economic justification for the Fed's aggressive start, but rejected the suggestion that the Fed was "catching up" with a late start to the easing cycle. A few days earlier, the ECB had made a second rate cut of 25 basis points, bringing the deposit rate down to 3.5%, as widely expected. The Governing Council resisted committing more to future policy decisions, as expected, and forecast revisions trended upward. The Bank of England was at odds, keeping the interest rate at 5%.

In terms of the data, the disinflationary trend was still in place, but the services sector remained robust. US headline inflation fell to 2.5% in August, while core inflation rose slightly to 3.2%. Overall, inflation in goods and energy prices continued to contribute to lower headline inflation, while services including housing rose over the month. In the UK, inflation accelerated slightly in August but all indicators were in line with expectations. Headline inflation was 2.2%, while core inflation and services inflation came in at 3.6% and 5.6% respectively. RPI exceeded expectations at 3.5%. The big surprise came from Eurozone flash estimates for September, with headline inflation falling to 1.8%. While energy deflation accounted for most of the deceleration (-6% y/y), core inflation slowed to 2.7%. More importantly, these figures were a far cry from the ECB's September macroeconomic forecast. The ECB had forecast average core inflation of 2.9% in Q3, implying around 2.9% for September.

We expect central banks to continue the tapering cycle in order to bring rates to at least close to neutral. For the ECB, we expect 50 bp in cuts this year (October and December), followed by an additional 50 bp in H1 2025. For the Federal Reserve, we also expect 50 bp in cuts by the end of the year and believe further cuts will be highly dependent on the outcome of the US presidential election. Finally, we expect the Bank of England to cut rates by 25 bp in November and to maintain a quarterly pace next year, while acknowledging the downside risk mainly due to expectations of a tighter budget. Overall, we expect other central banks in developed markets to follow the same monetary policy trend with the exception of the Bank of Japan, where we expect an additional rate hike of 25 bp in Q1 2025.

In this context of monetary easing, we were positive on the interest rate sensitivity of our portfolios and opted for real yields that lagged behind their nominal counterparts during the last period of decline. In terms of regions, we opted for Europe over the US as we believe the macroeconomic outlook is not as strong on this side of the Atlantic and that this has not yet been reflected in the interest rate spread between the two regions. We were also positive on US inflation expectations, as the recent decline offered attractive valuations, and were underweight on French inflation expectations given the forecasts.

ESG Metrics Definition

Our approach to ESG measurement seeks to combine qualitative and quantitative techniques. The tree rating shown in this report is a simple pictorial representation of the overall ESG rating of the fund's portfolio. A fund which has 1 tree has a poor ESG rating, whereas a fund with 5 trees has a high ESG rating. For more information on our ESG standards, approach and methodology please visit: Putting ESG to work | AXA IM Core (axa-im.com).

ESG relative rating is calculated as the difference between the ESG absolute rating of the portfolio and the ESG absolute rating of benchmark. If ESG Relative rating is positive (negative), this means that the portfolio has a higher (lower) ESG absolute rating than the benchmark.

What is this product?

Type

The Product is a share class of the Sub-Fund "AXA World Funds - Global Inflation Bonds" (the Sub-Fund) which is part of the SICAV "AXA World Funds" (the "Company").

Term

This product has no maturity date, although it has been created for 99 years and could be liquidated under the conditions laid down in the articles of incorporation of the company.

Objectives

Investment Objective

The Sub-Fund's investment objective is to seek performance by investing mainly in inflation-linked bonds issued in OECD countries, over a medium term period.

Investment Policy

The Sub-Fund is actively managed in reference to the Bloomberg World Inflation-Linked Hedged EUR benchmark index (the "Benchmark") in order to capture opportunities in the inflation-linked bonds market. The Sub-Fund invests at minimum one third of its net assets in the components of the Benchmark. Depending on its investment convictions and after comprehensive macroeconomic and microeconomic analysis of the market, the Investment Manager can take more active positioning in terms of duration (duration measures in numbers of years, the portfolio's sensitivity to interest rate variations), geographical allocation and/or sector or issuer selection compared to the Benchmark. Thus, the deviation from the Benchmark is expected to be significant. However, in certain market conditions (high credit market volatility, turmoil…), the Sub-Fund's positioning on the above indicators may be close to the Benchmark.
The following investment decisions are undertaken after comprehensive macroeconomic and microeconomic analysis of the market:
- positioning on the inflation-linked yield curve (the inflation-linked yield curve illustrates the relationship between the investment term and the inflationlinked bond yield)
- management of duration for inflation-linked bonds (duration measures, in numbers of years, the portfolio's sensitivity to interest rate variations)
- positioning according to inflation expectations
- geographical allocation
The Sub-Fund invests:
- at least two thirds of its total assets in inflation-linked bonds issued by OECD governments, corporations or public institutions worldwide
- up to one third of its total assets in non inflation-linked debt securities and in money market instruments
The Sub-Fund may invest 100% of its total assets in sovereign debt securities.
The Sub-Fund will invest at least 90% of its net assets in investment grade securities.
Investment grade securities will be rated at least BBB- by Standard & Poor's or equivalent rating by Moody's or Fitch or if unrated then deemed to be so by the Investment Manager. Sub-investment grade securities will be rated between BB+ and B- by Standard & Poor's or equivalent rating by Moody's or Fitch or if unrated then deemed to be so by the Investment Manager. In case of downgrade below B- by Standard & Poor's or equivalent rating by Moody's or Fitch or if unrated then deemed to be so by the Investment Manager, securities will be sold within 6 months. If two different ratings of rating agencies exist, the lower rating will be considered, if more than two different ratings of rating agencies exist, the second highest rating will be considered.
The selection of credit instruments is not exclusively and mechanically based on their publicly available credit ratings but also on an internal credit or market risk analysis. The decision to buy or sell assets is also based on other analysis criteria of the Investment Manager.
The Sub-Fund may invest up to 5% of net assets in contingent convertible bonds (CoCos).
Within the limit of 200% of the Sub-Fund's net assets, the investment strategy may be achieved by direct investments and/or through derivatives, including Credit Default Swaps. Derivatives may also be used for hedging purposes. The use of derivatives for investment purposes is limited to 50% of the Sub- Fund's net assets.
The Sub-Fund targets a sensitivity between 5 and 15 years: if interest rates increase by 1%, the Net Asset Value of the Sub-Fund may decrease by 5% up to 15%.
Exposure of the Sub-Fund's assets denominated in a currency other than the Sub-Fund's reference currency is systematically hedged. There is no guarantee that such hedging be a perfect hedge at 100% of the net assets at all times.
The Sub-Fund is a financial product that promotes environmental and/or social characteristics within the meaning of article 8 of the Regulation (EU) 2019/2088 of 27 November 2019 on sustainability-related disclosures in the financial sector.
